History

- ✓ The Woodie manganese mine is located 380km south east of Port Hedland
- ✓ Manganese ore has been mined at Woodie since the early 1950's
- ✓ Manganese was the first bulk commodity exported from Port Hedland - 14 years before iron ore

Minerals for life

- ✓ Manganese is the 4th most used metal – behind iron, aluminium and copper

Manganese is used to increase the strength, resistance and workability of steel.

The steel industry consumes approximately 90% of manganese produced globally.

The world's best manganese oxide ores are produced at Woodie Woodie in Western Australia.

High quality steel and manganese ferroalloys - an essential component of modern life.

- ✓ Increasing importance as a battery metal
